SPORTING COMMENT.

BY J. ED GRILLO.

Just how good a fighter Jack Johnson is his victory over Jim Jeffries has failed to prove. That fight did not give a line on Johnson's ability, for the reason that he was not forced to extend himself. He was up against a helpless man, who could neither defend himself nor inflict punishment, and yet it required fifteen rounds to put him away. Truly there was nothing about Johnson's performance that made him stand out as a marvel. Not once during the fight did Jeffries sting Johnson. It may be argued that this proves the wonderful defensive ability of the colored champion, but that hardly holds good, for the reason that little like Burns and Ketchell got to him. It more probably shows the pitiful condition that Jeffries was in. Not being under fire at any time, Johnson did not have a chance to show how he would act under such conditions. It remains to be shown how he would have come out of a fight in which he was getting as good as he sent. It may never be known what sort of stuff Johnson is really made of, for there is no one to fight him now of his own size or class.

Any sort of a fighter, it is more evident now than ever, could have beaten Jeffries Monday. The former champion seems to have gone into the ring in a dazed condition. Either he was not in the fight, or he was so far from his normal condition that he was not in the fight. There cannot be the slightest doubt that in Jeffries' camp were families of men who knew what awaited him. No doubt it was a general breakdown of system, brought about by physical exertion of over a year and a half, and much mental worry. It is no doubt true that Jeffries was better in any of his boxing bouts with regular partners than he was when he entered the ring to fight Johnson. He was more in command of his own body, and he was more in command of his own mind. He wanted to take chances he could probably have finished him in a very few rounds.

At the rate the local team is going it is by no means assured that it will win as many games this season as it did last. Last year the team won twenty-five games, but this season it has won only twenty. The difference between Washington and St. Louis is not a Washington standpoint. Can it be that we are destined to finish last again?

The best manager for a ball team is the one who can get material for the team without the proper strength the manager has a chance.

The locals were apparently an improved team in the spring over last year. The addition of Elbert and the return of Milan to good form promised much, but seem to have accomplished little.

Last year the team won the reason for the team's poor showing was because Cantillon did not treat his players properly, and therefore did not get the work out of them. McAleer has resorted to a different plan. He has not been a driver, but has treated his players with every consideration, and has yet to use a harsh word to one of his men, and yet the team is not winning.

So it would seem that all these various systems of handling and managing ball teams amount to nothing unless the material is there.

A team to finish well up in the race must have a certain amount of strength. After that has been obtained luck may cut a lot of figure, but there is not much chance of luck being a weak team up in the race or keeping a good one down. Dave Fortune figures to cast an even number of smiles in all directions during a season's campaign.

There is but one prescription for a loser and that is get a winner.

There has been never been such a complete collapse of a pitching staff as that of the Tigers this season. For the past month or more Jennings' pitchers have shown but little form, the best performances being veteran, who was not expected to deliver much this season.

There is no explanation for such a falling off in effectiveness, but for which Detroit would be fighting for the lead now. Of course, there may be a bracing-up of Jennings' trinkets, in which case the team may yet cut a figure, but it will require a remarkable spurt to bring it back to the front.

Langdon played its best game of the season yesterday, defeating St. Paul's by a score of 10 to 4. The Episcopalians made the Hamline troupe bite the dust and take the short end of a 5 to 3 score.

Cleveland caught his first game for the season yesterday, defeating the Hamline troupe by a score of 10 to 4. The Episcopalians made the Hamline troupe bite the dust and take the short end of a 5 to 3 score.

Hamline overcame to lose. There was not a full team on the field until fifteen minutes after the regular time of starting. The Methodists down without a hit in seven of the nine innings. He allowed four hits and three came in the third inning.

Mattingly made a fine catch of Miller's foul fly to left in the fourth. He raked in the sphere on a dead run.

Dutch Sheaffer and Birch engineered a classy double play in the third inning. Cleveland hit safely to right and Porter followed with a bunt down the third base line. Sheaffer retired the batter at first neatly and Cleveland tried to make a play on second, but Porter's throw and the ball beat him to the base.

Birch twirled the final three innings for Hamline and allowed but one hit. He fanned three batters and walked one.

Today's game—Governor Printing Office vs. Pension Bureau, 5:30 p.m.

Herrell, the star twirler of the Columbia 101 team, continued his good work again yesterday afternoon when he fanned eleven batters of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, and, with his teammates, took the contest, 9 to 4.

As in Saturday's game when the same two teams met, Zirkle opposed the rubber after he had been driven from the rubber after two and one-third innings, in which time the Printers had connected for four hits and scored six runs. He fanned two men.

Cox, who supplanted Zirkle, did not better, but the fielders gave him better support. He sent three batters down on strikes, and passed two and unworked a wild pitch.

McCarthy, the star of the Pension Bureau team, has been transferred to Columbia 101 and played his first game with that aggregation yesterday.

Suess put up his usual good game behind the bat for the winners, his throwing to bases being better than for some time past.

Boyd covered lots of ground around the keystone sack, while Herrell stopped several hard drives going through the box and got the runner at first.

Thornberry connected for a triple and single, while Wildie and Suess each got a double and single. Ellett, Reynolds and McCarthy each got a safety.

For the Hello boys, Howell got three of the hits for his team. E. Hurdle got the only extra base hit when he landed for a couple in the eighth.

The Telephone team put up a miserable fielding game, having eight errors charged up against them. Columbia 101 was charged with three.

Each team pulled off a double play, the printers getting one in the first inning, when Herrell got W. Hurdle's grounder, forcing Howell at second, and Boyd threw to McCarthy, getting the runner at first. The Telephone boys got theirs in the third, when Cox pulled in Sanders' line drive and threw to Frisco at first, getting Boyd.

Game Today—Commerce and Labor vs. Navy.

The Post Office team came to the assistance of the Commerce and Labor team yesterday afternoon on the White House. The Post Office team was in a fast game. Score, 5 to 2.

The Laborites over their thanks to Ferguson, the man who served them over for Post Office, for certainly pitched a fine game. He was found for nine hits and four runs in the first inning. He was found for nine hits and four runs in the first inning.

Opportunity binging helped the Letter Presses to get some runs, but they were strong in the first inning, having scored two by good batting. In this round, Kerr singled and stole second. Orrison hit one to left for a base and both men moved up on Fenton's out, pitcher to first. A neat bingle by Harvey cutler scored them.

Several times the District boys had a good chance to get some runs, but they needed single was lacking. In the seventh inning three of them got on the bases, but they were not able to score. Ferguson did himself credit by retiring the side by the short route.

About the prettiest play of the season was pulled off by Fenton of Post Office in the third inning. It was after the following had bunt down the third base line. Sheaffer retired the batter at first neatly and Cleveland tried to make a play on second, but Porter's throw and the ball beat him to the base.

G. G. BEDWELL SUSPENDED.

Nadu's Antics at Latonia Get Horse Owner in Trouble.

CINCINNATI, July 6.—A sensation was caused at Latonia race track yesterday by an official edict suspending G. G. Bedwell and his big stable of horses. This action followed the crazy antics of the horse Nadu in the paddock before the sixth race Monday. Dr. Keogh, paddock judge, refused to allow Nadu to start, as the Bedwell horse showed symptoms of having been doped.

The horse was crated by order of the judges and an investigation started. Bedwell in defense declared that some one had entered the stable and tampered with the horse, but the officials seem to blame Bedwell for the horse's unusual condition.
